Samuel's experience as ruler convinced him that Israel's only hope was in a leader who would inspire the confidence of all the people. His own sons could not do this. So he looked around for some one to draw the people together. He finally found a young man named Saul, the son of a wealthy man of the tribe of Benjamin. (I. Samuel 9:1-10.) Saul had been sent by his father to look up some young asses which had strayed away. He went to Samuel, thinking that he might give him some information about them. The moment Samuel saw Saul he recognized him as...
